

The Italian Composting and Biogas Association (CIC) unites public and private companies, local authorities and others involved in the production of compost, as well as organizations which do not make compost but have an interest in the composting process (producers of machinery and equipment, producers of fertilisers, research bodies etc.)

Download the short presentation of our Association: see attachment

The Association is a not-for-profit organization. It is important at a national level and has approximately 100 members.

The Members of the CIC are not only committed to operating in scrupulous conformity with the norms governing the production and use of compost, but also to promoting the development of the sector.

The Association co-ordinates and promotes the activities of the associated companies and public bodies.

- To promote the production of composted materials, especially those of high quality and controlled quality.
- To promote the correct use of high quality and controlled quality compost in agriculture, in land reclamation and in urban gardening.

- To safeguard and control correct methods and procedures for the production of composting material
- To promote initiatives for sales and marketing, and the appropriate destination for the final products
- To carry out research and scientific studies, and distribute information relating to methods and techniques
- To organise and run training and refresher courses on composting and the use of products