

The increase in separate collection and recycling of food waste has been extraordinary in Italy: a 10% annual increase in 10 years.

However, very few treatment plants have been built. This risks being the story of a missed opportunity.

The article appeared in the April 2015 Issue of Renewable Matter and includes an Interview to Mr. M. Centemero, the Managing Director of CIC, the Italian Composting and Biogas Association.